School Entertainment

The program rendered by the pupils of the Home school, at the residence of R. J. Vaughan, on Saturday evening, March 8, 1902, was a decided success.

The opening address delivered by Roy Looney, a ten year old boy was better than could have been expected from one so young.

The recitations by Florence, Ora, Cora, Addie, Roy and Emil Looney, and Frank Fealey were well rendered and received much applause. Cora Looney in her recitation "The Daddy's Lesson," created much mirth, while Florence Looney in her good bye song made quite a hit.

The recitations by Edna and Nellie Bradley were simply all right.

The song by Nellie and Ednae Bradley was well executed.

During the evening Miss Grace and Emily Hobart rendered a song which was well received by all.

The songs sung by the pupils were up to date and showed much musical ability.

The melody by Oscar Vaughan, Emil, Addie and Florence Looney was one of the best on the program.

The dialogue, "The Rival Orators," by Oscar Vaughan and Roy Looney was the hit of the evening. They are both dandies in that line.

The music for the entertainment was furnished by El and Graver Vaughan on the mandolin and guitar. These two young men just returned from the Normal school at Norman, O. T., a few days ago and proved themselves to be accomplished musicians.

The school which comprises eight pupils was originated and is supported by B. J. Vaughan at his own expense, for which he certainly deserves special mention.

Miss Grace Hobart, the teacher is an exemplary young lady and has given entire satisfaction for which she has the best wishes of the entire Vaughan community.

The entertainment was attended by every patron of the school as well as several from Bradley, Ninnekah, and Alex.

Miss Emily Hobart and Teddy Bell of Chickasha were present and so was the editor and Miss J. Mabel Granles.

The tables in the dining room were loaded with good things to eat and drink, to which we all did justice.

We then looked over Mr. Vaughan's 5000 acre farm and numerous herds of fine Hereford cattle and then returned home after fully enjoying the hospitality of our host and hostess Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Vaughan.

"Spring-chicken" item from the Street Messenger: The chicken subject begins to look serious in the town. G. K. Bowman took a shot at one of the birds; while she scratched up his garden. The hen accidentally died, and the good-hearted gardener picked the remains up and took them over to the owner. Bowman was arrested on Saturday and fined $7.50 and didn't get the chicken either. The court probably held that Bowman should keep his garden fenced up so he wouldn't run around and bother the neighbor's hen. Some of Bowman's friends told him that he couldn't be fined for killing chickens while they were destroying his garden, but he says they fine him just the same.

New Kirk knocks at the door of the Temple of Pan and asks for a quiet corner. She has a full bodged missionary in China.
